Administrative history note: On 12 September 1960 Council approved the creation of a chair of Nuclear Engineering. At the same time it was noted that it was envisaged when this chair was filled, a School of Nuclear Engineering would come into being in the Faculty of Engineering with the new chair at its head (resolution 60/112). On 13 March 1961 Council appointed Dr J. J. Thompson to this position (resolution 61/2). He took up his appointment in May 1961 and so the School of Nuclear Engineering came into being.

On 9 September 1985 Council approved the disestablishment of the School of Nuclear Engineering and the transferral of the school’s staff to the School of Mechanical & Industrial Engineering effective from 1 January 1986 (resolution 85/96).
